Weekly Inspirational Corner

(Sponsored by an Irma Times reader)

In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God.

The same was in the beginning with God.

All things were made by Him; and without Him was not anything that came to be.

In Him was life; and the life was the light of men.

And the light shined in darkness; and the darkness comprehended it not.

That was the true Light, which lighteth every man that cometh into the world.

He was in the world, and the world was made by Him, and the world knew Him not.

He came unto His own, and His own received Him not.

But as many as received Him, to them gave He power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on His name.—St. John 1:1-5, 9-12.

Celebrate Silver Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Fenton were pleasantly surprised recently when family and friends entertained in their honor at a dance on the occasion of their Silver Wedding Anniversary at the McKernan Community Hall, Edmonton.

They were escorted into the hall by their son Val, where Mrs. Fenton was presented with a corsage of pink delphinium roses by Ron. Leonard presented a bouquet of pink and white roses.

The bride's table was centered with a three-tiered Anniversary Cake, made by Mrs. James Anderson, their daughter. It was flanked by white tapers in silver candleabra and bouquets of gladioli, peonies and carnations in shades of pink and white.

The toast to the honored couple was proposed by Mr. Stuart Fenton who had been best man at the wedding. Myrtle and Gordon thanked everyone for their kindnesses. Miss Gay Burr was soloist and the occasion came to an end with the singing of "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows."

Mr. and Mrs. Fenton were the recipients of many beautiful gifts. Miss Gay Burr was in charge of the guest book and lunch was served by Mrs. Bernadette Youzefowich, Mrs. Walter Speers and Mrs. Grace Homan.

Out-of-town folk attended from Irma, Thorabury, Stony Plain and Wainwright.

SURPRISE PARTY

Thursday evening, June 18, a group of Sharon Luther Leaguers journeyed to Wainwright and walked in on the newly-weds, Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Fuder in their spacious apartment.

After Barbara and Lorne had been given time to recover from their surprise, and benches had been brought in, the evening's program began with the singing of "What a Friend We Have in Jesus," followed by scripture reading and prayer, "Bless the House Where'er He Dwells," and the singing of "Jesus Christ Is All in All," which was sung, after which Erling Nelson directed several enjoyable games.

Mrs. Raasok then presented Barbara and Lorne with two pictures from Sharon Luther League, and Lorne expressed their thanks.

A delicious lunch brought the evening to a close.

WITH THE District Agriculturist

By J. S. Duncan

Field Inspection of Seed Crops:

Anyone wanting to have a field inspected for registration must get their application in by the end of June. Late applications may not be inspected so don't delay. The address this year is Inspection Service, Plant Products, Department of Agriculture, Federal Building, Edmonton. Application Forms can be obtained from this address. Don't forget to send your membership application to the Seed Growers Association.

Insects on Trees:

It's time to keep an eye on your trees for signs of insects attacking them. Control is good with insecticides such as Malathion, Dieldrin, Heptachlor, etc. Be prepared to spray your trees as soon as you see signs of damage.

Weed Control:

We are into the weed season now. If you haven't already done so, look your fields over to see if you need to spray. Remember that the drier it is the more harm weeds do to the crop. Manual weeds can be controlled with 2,4-D or MCPA. Thistle may require a second spraying later on. Such weeds as Toad Flax and Leafy Spurge are easiest to handle with soil sterilants such as D.B. Granular or Polybor Chlorate if they are in small patches. Larger areas are too expensive to use chemical on and must be kept black by cultivation.

How's the Hay Crop?

In many cases hay is going to be very scarce this year. If you are at a bad time to think about seeding greenfeed to provide roughage for next winter. Pastures are also short and it may be necessary to seed a cover crop of Oats or a mixture of Oats and Ryegrass in order to correct this situation. Eagle Oats have given the best yields of both greenfeed and pasture in experiments carried out in the past.

Honored at Party

Mrs. Moyer was guest of honor at a party held at the Gunn home last Friday with Mrs. E. Stuart Taylor as hostess. About a dozen ladies enjoyed a social afternoon topped off with a delicious lunch served by Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. Guiltner and Mrs. Ronch.

Some delightful reminiscences of old times came to light over the tea cups. For example, the impetuous lass who in her haste to get going places, backed her seat between the shafts before noting that he was sans harness! Also the English lady, newly arrived in Canada, who when walking from town and carrying her groceries, followed the wrong telephone line and turned up several miles from home. Then, too, was the story of the cagey old-timer who sold the cream separator to the trusting homesteader whose total herd consisted of 2 oxen! Our hostess related for us the first social call she paid after her arrival from England at the Saskatchewan homestead many years ago. She travelled in a sketchy cutter behind a shaggy, shedding horse and was driven 11 miles over prairie roads on a windy, muddy day nattily attired for this special occasion in a fur jacket, innervase cap and an elegant black picture hat.

Mrs. Moyer, who has been keeping house for the D. H. Gunn family for the past 6 months, expects to return to her home at Vermilion in July.

Card of Thanks

We would like to thank all who sent cards and donations to express sympathy to us during our recent bereavement. Thank you to Mr. Inglis for his kind message and others who helped in any way. —Herb, Art, Red, Edythe, Helen, Mike and Allan.

ALCOHOL AS A REMOVER

—THE ALASKA HIGHWAY NEWS, Fort St. John, B.C.
Someone has well said that alcohol will remove stains from your summer clothes. This may be true but stains from summer clothes are not the only things alcohol will remove. Alcohol will remove the stain alright but it will also remove the summer clothes for the one who drinks it. Alcohol will remove good food from the dinner table and shoes from the baby's feet. It will remove smiles from the face and then remove the possibility of its ever returning. It will remove sinners from the face and laughter from the lips of innocent children.

Yes, alcohol is a great remover. It will remove stains and leave pains. It will remove fame and leave shame. It will remove plenty and leave poverty. It will remove fine homes and leave behind hovels. In fact alcohol will remove anything great or small, that makes life worthwhile.

The bible says, "Look not thou upon the wine when it is red, when it giveth his color in the cup, when it moveth itself aright; at the last it biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder." Proverbs 23:31-32. —Adapted Rev. A. G. Wooley.

THREE OF THE SIXTEEN male pheasants can be seen with the hens at the bird pen, south of town. The birds will be released in the Erwood district.

THE BEAUTIFUL MALE PHEASANT is one that belongs to Earl Boswell. The bird was hatched by a hen and was raised by Mr. Boswell, as a pet. This two-year-old pheasant is being kept at the pens, as it is hoped that Mr. Boswell may be able to find a place near Victoria, where he may be able to raise pheasants. In which case his bird will be sent out to the Coast.

RET PHEASANT—Recently we left Earl Murray, holding "Joey" the pet pheasant at the pens south of town. This time we have caught Mr. Murray, playing with Joey, who obligingly did just what we hoped he would do—he flew up at Earl to take a bite at him.

Winter raising of pheasants holds promise for hunters

"With any luck," said Earl Murray, president of the local Fish & Game League, "hunters in this area may get an open season on cock pheasants in a few years." Mr. Murray, who with Ole Renden, has winter raised about 100 chick pheasants, which were supplied by the Provincial Game Farm at Saskatoon, operated by the Sask. Fish and Game League and supported with grants from the Department of Natural Resources, made this statement when we visited the pheasant pen.

The chicks are supplied free of charge providing local Branch of the Fish and Game League will raise them and release them in the area in the spring. In this manner the winter mortality is reduced.

The 120 baby pheasants were 10 weeks old when they arrived here. Mr. Murray and Mr. Renden penned them on Earl Boswell's property south of town.

The buildings had been used previously as a milk farm. So it was necessary to cover the pen area 75 feet square with 2-inch chicken wire mesh. The chicks were old enough to eat grain when they arrived, so there was no problem with feeding. Grain had been swept from grain cars on the CNR and donated by local members of the Fish and Game League in the area.

During the winter months about 20 of the original flock were lost to predators, owls, weasels and hawks.

Earl Murray says, "The birds can withstand bitterly cold weather, but a driving snowstorm which might plug their nostrils is about the only real danger."

During the winter Earl and Ole made a trip out to the pens three times each week, to feed the birds. They were fed wheat only and ate snow for water. Judging by the appearance of the flock now, this diet was about as beneficial as possible.

Presently there are settings of eggs being released to district farmers. It is estimated that a total of 10 settings of 20 eggs each will be possible.

The farmers who have offered to take the settings, will release the birds after they are full grown. The idea is to release about six hens for every cock bird. Any male pheasants over this ratio may be retained by the farmer for his own disposition.

This program will hasten the increase in the pheasant population. Since pheasants are not likely to stray from their home district, it is expected that a three-year program should provide enough birds to be able to have a hunting season for male pheasants. The bulk of the flock at the pheasant pen were released in the Erwood area at the end of April. Mr. Murray stated that it would be helpful if people in the district would report the presence of birds near their farms and that if birds should come near their buildings during the winter months, it would be appreciated if grain was placed out for the pheasants.

It would also be a help if the birds are not molested.

In view of the successful winter raising of the 1953 flock, the local Branch of the Fish and Game League has decided to bring in 150 birds this fall.

The upland game committee will be responsible for looking after the birds.

Mr. Murray said, "Any donations of feed for the 1959 flock will be greatly appreciated." Anyone wishing to make a contribution is asked to contact Mr. Earl Murray in Hudson Bay.

Science has a place in helping retarded

—THE DAILY GRAPHIC

Portage is Prairie, Man. Science can do something for mentally-retarded children even though the condition is hereditary. A Portage doctor told a meeting of the Association for Retarded Children in Winnipeg.

Dr. Robert Gibson of the Manitoba school for the mentally retarded said strides have been made in treating the body chemistry of such children.

"Even where the condition is essentially hereditary the outlook is changing," he said. "We may not be able to alter our heredity but we can do something about its effects."

It had been found that certain patients were not able to make proper use of the protein in their diets, and this resulted in lack of pigmentation in hair, skin and eyes.

The defect also meant that poisonous products were formed which affected the nervous system and reduced intelligence.

Dr. Gibson said this discovery was made in Norway in 1934, but that it was almost 20 years before a diet was found which contained a minimum of the harmful substance. Afflicted babies, fed with the diet, showed a disappearance of the "bleached" condition and improvement in intelligence.

Other mental defects could result from a person's inability to utilize properly the sugar and calcium in milk.

"In both instances, reducing or eliminating the offending article from the diet at the earliest age is offering genuine hope of improvement or prevention," he said.

Dr. Gibson said mental defects could be divided into two main groups—those who cannot cope with an intricate industrial society and those who are wholly unable to look after themselves.

The first group formed 75 per cent of all mental defectives, he said.

Training and stimulation could raise the level of intelligence.

TRAVEL TIPS—On Packing
Packing tricks I have learned over many years of hopping about by plane, train or road may not meet with the approval of many travel "experts" but they save a lot of wear and tear on me and my clothes.

A dyed-in-the-wool "one suitcase" gal, I think all those cute travel kits for cosmetic, manicure materials, sewing equipment and washing supplies are a waste of time, space and money. Travel kits always contain things you don't want and leave no room for others that you do want.

I never use the hangers that are fitted into the lids of luggage. I think they crease things too much. I like my dresses to lie flat, folded over once at the waist.

My recipe for easy and efficient packing calls for one medium sized suitcase and lots and lots of plastic bags and jars. Practically everything except the dresses go into transparent polythene bags. (Usually the names of the vegetables that came in them have been scrubbed off.) Anyway there are bags for nylon, gloves, shoes, lingerie and jewelry.

My do-it-yourself travel kits are two zippered plastic bags. One contains small sized plastic jars and bottles filled with my regular cream, powder, hand lotion, perfume, etc., a toothbrush and pasta and a face cloth. (Someday hotels will smarten up and supply face cloths with their towels and save us damp packing.)

My second kit contains brush and comb, hand mirror, bobby pins, nail polish, scissors and my sewing kit which is simply a tiny folder of needles, black and white thread and a few pins.

These two kits with shoes and other heavier items are arranged across the bottom of the bag, the heaviest towards the back so they won't slide when it is picked up.

The polythene bags of gloves and other small items fill up the holes. The last things packed are my dresses, which are laid neatly across the top of everything.

Hats that can be packed with the dresses go into the corners, each in its own polythene bag, of course.

Packing or unpacking takes me five minutes and my suitcase has never weighed more than .35 pounds. Airplanes allow you 44 pounds, so I can always take along my nine-pound portable typewriter.

Next week I'm off on a trip across Canada. To show you that I do take my own advice, I'll tell you what I pack, in what fabrics and how.

News Report From Edmonton

By Ken Mason

EDMONTON—The big race is all but over now.

And it won't be long until Albertans will have made their decision known—whether they'll go along with Premier Manning's Social Credit government for a seventh term, or swing their support behind Liberals, Conservatives or CCF.

We'll steer clear of the political issues this week, because it will be election day before this piece appears in some areas. You've probably heard enough political talk in the last few weeks anyhow.

Thanks to one of the biggest co-operative newsgathering efforts ever carried out in Alberta, residents of the province will learn the election results in record time this year.

The Canadian Press, daily newspapers in the cities, radio stations and Alberta Government Telephones are teaming up to get the voting results to the public in the shortest possible time.

As a result, citizens of Alberta should know which party has been elected within little more than an hour after the polls close at 8 p.m. on election day.

Returning officers in all ridings have been instructed by Raymond Crevolin, clerk of the executive council and chief electoral officer, to co-operate with newsgathering media in getting the results out as quickly as possible.

The job will be easier this time, mostly due to a change in the voting system. With the abandonment of proportional representation and the single transferable ballot, deputy returning officers will be able to get their ballots counted in a much shorter time.

The DROs will relay the word to returning officers, who have been asked to relay it immediately to The Canadian Press or to the newspaper responsible for collection of the results in their particular area.

Election officials are confident DROs will be able to have their ballots counted within less than an hour after the polls close, especially if it is a tight vote as indicated by the widespread lack of interest in the election.

In the cities, reporters will be on duty in returning officers' headquarters, to flash poll-by-poll results to city newsmen as they are phoned in by deputy returning officers.

To illustrate how efficient the newsgathering machinery has become, political parties used to place scrutineers at as many polls as possible, have them phone in to party headquarters, and have a staff on hand to post the results on blackboard.

But for the last couple of elections, the political parties have discovered they can get the results faster by listening to the radio. Some of them are inclined to take it for granted, not realizing the weeks of planning and the co-ordinated teamwork that goes into covering an election.

A word or two about the new voting system:

The thing to remember when you go to the polling booth is that you must mark an X—one X only—beside the name of the candidate of your choice. If you put anything else on the ballot, it is spoiled and you lose your vote.

Some students of election procedure think the Alberta government made a mistake when it threw out the proportional representation and transferable ballot systems of voting.

They say PR and the transferable ballot are the fairest systems, because they allow voters to exercise restraint and subsequent choices. And as the 1955 election illustrated, alternate choices can change the result radically after the first count.

But the advantage of the simple X system is its ease. The federal government and nearly all the municipalities use it. It simplifies the procedure for the voter, and lessens the chance of ballots being spoiled.

On the other hand, some say, it works to the advantage of the party in power. Under the X system, the government-supported candidate often wins with much less than a clear majority, because the majority vote is split among two or more opposition candidates. Transferable ballots in such cases can often elect the candidate who truly has the greatest public support.

Bank of Montreal Family Finance Plan

MONTREAL, June 15—Development of a new form of consumer-finance loans by the Bank of Montreal, providing facilities for Canadians to consolidate all of their credit-buying under a single life-insured loan, with a single monthly payment, was announced today by the bank's president, G. Arnold Hart.

Mr. Hart said the system would be known as the "Bank of Montreal Family Finance Plan." It goes into operation at all of the bank's 781 Canadian offices today.

Personal loans under the new arrangements will be made for practically any purpose in amounts up to $3,500, while repayments will be scheduled over periods up to three years, where required. Such loans will be automatically life-insured.

Many of the loans will be made on an unsecured basis, although chattel-mortgage and other types of security may be taken where such collateral is normal. The main consideration in making loans will be the customer's ability to repay, without hardship, from regular income.

Interest will be six per cent a year on the actual outstanding balance, plus a charge to cover the cost of processing and service, Mr. Hart explained, adding, "The overall cost to the customer of a loan under the new plan is lower than generally prevails for consumer-finance in Canada and is particularly attractive for a life-insured loan."

Special Feature
The B of M plan includes a special feature which Mr. Hart referred to as "ever-ready credit." Under this provision, the customer may arrange for a standby personal credit, based on his income and commitments, and available for his use at any time. He is thus free to make purchases at will and issue cheques on the spot up to the limit of his prearranged credit.

"The bank's new plan will by no means be restricted to loans for the purchase of items normally bought on instalments, but will also be readily available for many other purposes such as medical and dental bills, education expenses and vacation costs," Mr. Hart said. "Neither," he added, "will the plan be confined to purely family purchases, but will be equally at the disposal of the single person."

Annual Missionary Convention

Costumes, color, curios, pictures and missionary messages will be the menu for the next week—beginning this Sunday, June 21st, when the Alliance Church holds its annual missionary convention. The first guest speaker will be Rev. K. R. Cairns, local retired missionary from the Fiji Islands. Mr. Cairns' home is in the Wetaskiwin area, so this is an opportunity for his many friends here to renew acquaintances and to see and hear first-hand what the Cairns family have accomplished during their eleven years on these beautiful islands in the South Pacific, "where every prospect pleases and only man is vile." Mr. Cairns is a dynamic speaker with "sold-out" conviction to his task.

Mr. Cairns will be speaking to the children in Sunday School at 10:30, and will be giving the Message at the morning worship service at 11:30, both in Irma. At 3 p.m. and 4 p.m., he will be speaking to the Sunday School and in the afternoon meeting in the Anglican Hall, Viking, at 8 p.m., he will be showing his missionary pictures in the Irma Alliance Church.

Monday, June 22nd will begin a series of missionary meetings with Rev. J. Paul Ellison of Cambodia. Mr. Ellison is the son of missionary parents who served in the same land. His first years as a young boy were spent there. He arrived back on the field in 1954 as a missionary and in his first service was able to give his testimony. Since then he has been doing evangelistic work in this same area.

Mr. Ellison will be showing curios and pictures and one of the outstanding features of his visit will be eleven different costumes from this colorful land of a little over 68,000 square miles and a population of over five million.

Mr. Ellison will be speaking at 8 p.m. each evening in the Anglican Hall, Viking, on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, and in the Irma Alliance Church on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. On Sunday he will be speaking at 10:30 a.m. and 11:30 a.m. in Irma and at 3 p.m. in the Viking Anglican Hall. A closing rally will be held in the Irma Church at 8 p.m. Everyone is given a very hearty invitation to all of these meetings.

A Second Look at Farm Cash Income in 1958

Generalizations can be misleading. That is why the 1958 Cash Income figures for all Canada, released recently and given some prominence, may give the wrong impression so far as they relate to the prairie grain farmer. On the surface, the fact that the cash income of all Canadian farmers is some 8 per cent above that of 1957, and very close to the record of 2.9 billion dollars reached in 1952, sounds very encouraging and to some extent it is.

In Western Canada, however, with little difference as between the three Prairie Provinces, that portion of the 1958 cash income derived from the sale of grain, hay and seed, was actually 18 per cent lower when compared to the 1956 returns. At the same time, the portion derived from the sale of livestock and poultry was 46 per cent higher. Thus while the position of the rancher or mixed farmer has improved, that of the straight grain grower has deteriorated. It is true that the quantity of grain delivered was somewhat less in 1958 than in 1956 but prices have been generally lower too. All this is in contrast to the situation in Ontario where the cash income from practically all farm products, grains included, was higher in 1958 than in 1956. Still other differences exist in other provinces.

City gets Safety Award

—THE SUN, Swift Current, Sask. Swift Current is the only city in Saskatchewan with a population of over 10,000 to receive a special Citation Award from the Canadian Highway Safety Council.

The award was announced at the Council's conference held in Toronto May 4, 5 and 6. It is awarded to cities which, by mited effort, completed 1958 without one fatal traffic accident. Swift Current was 496th of this city's fatality free record.

Only three other cities in Saskatchewan — Estevan, North Battleford and Yorkton, also received the Citation Award. Theirs were for cities with populations between 5,000 and 10,000.

Swift Current's fatality-free record is attributed largely to the co-operation of the general public, Police Chief Roy Hart said, in commenting on the award.

"The general motorist is a law-abiding citizen who follows the safety rules," the chief said. "He operates his motor vehicle in a careful manner to protect his own life and property, as well as that of others."

It is the few careless drivers that cause most of the accidents, Chief Hart said. He added that the law is strictly applied to that type of driver.

"The local news media assisted greatly to make citizens safety conscious and to promote safe driving," the Chief concluded.

PERMIT NOW NEEDED TO IMPORT BIRDS, ANIMALS

Anybody who wants to bring a game bird or game animal into Manitoba that is not native to the province will first have to get a permit from the province, Hon. Gurney Evans, minister of mines and natural resources, said recently.

The new regulation, passed by order-in-council recently, is designed to give the game branch a measure of control over the importation of birds and animals from other countries. This control is necessary, Mr. Evans said, for two reasons, (1) public safety and (2) the welfare of local wildlife.

There are some animals that could conceivably create a danger to the public. The biggest danger of non-native wildlife, however, is that the new species can adulterate local stock or cause too severe a competition for food and living room.

Mr. Evans said some species of bird or animal is set loose in Manitoba it becomes public property and the responsibility of the game branch. Mr. Evans said that this responsibility for the welfare of birds and animals can only be carried out properly if there is control over importation.

On the other hand government stocking programs of game birds, for example, might be endangered by the uncontrolled release of game birds by private organizations or individuals.

As soon as a new species of bird or animal is set loose in Manitoba it becomes public property and the responsibility of the game branch. Mr. Evans said that this responsibility for the welfare of birds and animals can only be carried out properly if there is control over importation.

He cited as an example the promotion by some unscrupulous operators of an animal known as nutria. This animal, which resembles a cross between a muskrat and a beaver, is often peddled as a means to "get rich quick" from farming them. In actual fact, Mr. Evans said, nutrias have a fur that is not in demand and never has been.

It is impossible to raise them on a fur farm and make a profit. He said that if these animals are turned loose into swamps and muskrat areas they will cause such strong competition that the muskrats will be driven out.

He said that in some parts of the United States, notably Louisiana, nutrias have become a serious problem and the prices are so low that maximum trapping is not carried out by trappers.

Mr. Evans said that while the issuing of permits will bring about control of imports, it will not be a hindrance to people with legitimate purposes.

WE DON'T WANT TO SCARE ANYONE, but if you happen to see a little monster such as the one pictured here, run like blazes. So far we haven't been able to positively identify it, but there is a suspicion that this ferocious looking insect is just as ferocious as it looks. If we're not mistaken, it's a deadly banana spider. It was brought into town on a stalk of bananas and made good its escape after being held in captivity. The photographer was lucky enough to get a picture of it while it was in a sluggish condition, but it wasn't sluggish when it escaped. It is hoped that the little monster has since died from exposure to our more rigorous climate. Anyway, it might serve as a lesson to shoppers when buying bananas. Always step on them first.

Hospital has poison centre

—THE SUN, Swift Current, Sask. Nine cases of child-poisoning were reported in the city last year, according to Health Region statistics. All five boys and four girls involved were under five years of age and received treatment in the emergency ward specially equipped to handle such cases.

The emergency ward is equipped with antidotes for all types of poison, as well as stimulants and drugs which are sometimes necessary when a patient goes into a shock condition. Oxygen and suction equipment as well as a tank of carbogen for carbon monoxide cases, are also kept within reach for emergency service.

Heleen Talpa, matron of the Union Hospital, said there is always a graduate nurse on duty in the emergency ward, and a chart of antidotes for all known poisons. Only once has it been necessary, she said, for a doctor to consult the poison-control centre at Regina, which speaks well for the hospital service in this regard.

Dr. Robert Bradley, Regional medical health officer, said, there are two poison-control centres in the province, one in the Regina General Hospital and the other in the University Hospital at Saskatoon. Both are on a 24-hour service basis.

From carefully indexed materials, physicians on duty at those centres can give any information on the ingredients or toxic substances in any preparation, Dr. Bradley said.

Quoting Dr. Stanley Bed, director of child health, Bradley said: "Considering there are now some 1,150 household preparations available of which the formulas are manufacturers' secrets, the information available at these centres can be of vital importance to a physician treating a case of poisoning."

Dr. Bradley said he could not over-emphasize the importance of keeping both medications and household preparations out of reach of youngsters, especially those of one to four years.

Oscar Wiig

—THE BULLETIN, Brooks, Alberta.

Una MacLean of the Glenbow Foundation in Calgary is compiling historical material on the east-central Alberta shortgrass area north of the Red Deer River. It's a big undertaking and a big area in which to delve and dig for early settlers, photographs, incidents, stories of famine, fire and families. Somewhere along the line the name of Oscar Wiig of Steveston should crop up.

Oscar, you see, is from Brooklyn. So are a lot of people, but Oscar Wiig came direct from Brooklyn to a lonely homestead in the Alberta prairie, in 1911—and has lived there ever since. He and Mrs. Wiig, once left their prairie home to live in Calgary, but neither could stand it in the city and came back to their home on the sunny side of a slope along the Red Deer.

The only reason we mention it now is that Oscar's name is on Jane Haven's list for his memoirs. So more of the Wiig's later.

TRAVEL TIPS—On Fabrics

Travel tipsters often say, "Nothing travels like wool or silk." Don't you believe it! Some of the best and also some of the worst travelling clothes I have owned have been in both these fibres.

It is true that no other fibre has more natural resilience than wool for shedding wrinkles but the type of weave has a lot to do which how uncrushable a wool fabric can be.

Silk too is a dandy traveller in many cases but I'll never forget a pure silk shantung that had to be pressed after every wearing. Packing reduced to a hopeless mess.

From my own experience I have found that fabrics that travel best are those with a pliable weave and a natural body or weight. This applies whether they are silk, wool or any of the dozens of types of Canadian fabrics of man-made fibres.

For example, I think jersey or knitwear is the world's best traveller. They have a pliable construction that just won't set into creases like stiffer fabrics will. Jersey of any type has a weight to it. Lift a piece of jersey in your hand and you'll see how its own weight pulls it down into folds. It is this weight which enables it to "hang out" so perfectly.

Of course these wrinkle-shedding qualities can be found in varying degrees in hundreds of other types of Canadian fabrics. Try the weight test on linens, crepes, wools or any fabric which catches your fancy.

To test the resilience of fabric weaves I always gather some of the fabric into my hand and crush it as hard as I can. If it springs back uncrushed when released, I know it is pliable. If not, I beware.

These simple tests determine which things go into my suitcase any time of year. Of course, for summer holidays, another important feature is easy washability.

Again, jersey tops my list, this time jersey made from man-made fibres. For honest-to-goodness, drip-dry, no-iron qualities there is nothing like easy-care jerseys in Orion, Nylon, Arnel, or Terylene.

In hot weather though there is nothing quite so cool, crisp and comfortable to wear as cotton. Today we have cottons treated to new scientific finishes which give them a lot of the easy-care qualities that are such a joy.

Next week I'll tell you how you can take it with you.

CAN YOU BEAT THIS?

—THE PRESS, LaPêche, Sask.

High winds and resulting dust storms bring about many queer things, some like a duck in the water, but this is not one of the otherwise happenings. While making the first round of the day recently a farmer in the LaPêche district saw a duck which had sat on the nest throughout the preceding day until she was completely buried and was busy engaged in digging her way back to the light of day.
